SOUTH CAROLINA

What is SC DSOM?

The South Carolina District School of Ministry is a convenient, fast track and inexpensive way to satisfy basic academic requirements for ministerial credentials with the Assemblies of God and to provide quality ministry education for staff and members of local congregations.

What are the advantages of SC DSOM?

Our program of studies provides personal accountability and a unique classroom environment guided by a select faculty that promotes exchange of ideas, focused dialogue, and exposure to differing perspectives on various subject matters.

How do I get my textbooks?

Students are responsible to obtain the required textbook for each course. Upon enrollment for a course, the student will receive a study guide which indicates the textbook required. Textbooks may be purchased from the supplier of your choice (Christian Book, Amazon, etc.)

How do I prepare for class?

Upon enrollment, a study guide will be provided via email. Answers to the study guide questions must come from the required textbook. Allow yourself about one month for pre-classroom preparation. This will allow enough time to read all required materials, answer all study guide questions, and study time for the exam. All final exam questions will be based on your study guide.

Will I automatically receive credentials?

SC DSOM does not grant ministerial credentials. Our courses satisfy all basic academic standards for credentialing. The SC AG office provides a credential application and approval process. For more information regarding ministerial credentials, please contact michelle.sandler@ag4sc.com

SC DSOM is endorsed by the National DSOM Association of the Assemblies of God.

Classes are being held on the first Saturday of each month via Zoom.

The one-time New Student Registration fee is $100

Each course is $100

Late fees may apply
